Bearspaw Historical Society News

September 30th is the National Day for Truth and Reconciliation

In January of this year, the BHS created a committee for the purpose of acknowledging the indigenous beginnings of the land which much later become known as Bearspaw. To that end, we have developed a statement that we will henceforth read at all events we participate in or create. We have done so three times already. First for a speaker session on the Glenbow Park, then on the Civic holiday of August 7th and again at our September 10th Centennial Celebration. At all of these, visitors to our buildings were plentiful.

The original name of this day is Orange Shirt Day, and the Orange Shirt Society exists to create awareness of the individual, family and community, inter-generational, impacts of Indian Residential Schools. This day signifies the time of year when Indigenous children were historically taken from their homes and to these schools.

The shirt belonged to Phyllis Webstad, a gift from her grandmother. Six years old, she was very excited to wear it on her first day of school. But at the St. Joseph Mission Residential School she was immediately stripped of all her clothes. The orange shirt was never returned to her. It now symbolizes how the children were robbed of their culture and self-esteem. The official tagline for this day is “Every Child Matters” to stress that all peoples’ cultural experiences are important.

Phyllis, a survivor of that school system, is Northern Secwepemc (Shuswap) from the Stswecem’c Xgat’tem

First Nation (Canoe Creek Indian Band). She now tours the country telling her story and raising awareness about the impacts of the residential school system. She has published two books, the “Orange Shirt Story” and “Phyllis’s Orange Shirt” for younger children. In 2017 she received the Thompson Rivers University Distinguished Alumni Award for her unprecedented impact on local, provincial, national and international communities through the sharing of her orange shirt story.

Orange Shirt Day, now known as Truth and Reconciliation Day, was elevated to a statutory holiday for federal employees by the Canadian government in 2021. According to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC), at least 3,200 Indigenous children died in the overcrowded residential schools. Due to poor record-keeping by the churches and federal government, it is unlikely that we will ever know the total loss of life there. However, the number may be more than 6,000.

This is but one story about the residential schools. There are many more that we are only now beginning to learn and understand. In Canadian communities people are encouraged to wear an orange shirt on September 30th. At the BHS, we are committed to maintaining our venues as welcome and inclusive and such that encourage ways of knowing, doing, connecting and being. We acknowledge that we are all treaty people and are responsible to one another.
